

through the warm dark night
 I hear
the sound of waves
 lapping at
the shore

songs she once sang
 to accompany
the now-black
 gulls

screams that cut
 back
to
every-absent breasts

the silent horrors
 of blistering madness

and dreams
 from which we cannot wake

through the warm dark night
 I hear
my love