

my volcano, bleeding fire breathing ash from out your lungs the cataclysmic blast unfolds to turn the forest to an urn now silence as the gray snow falls on bones, on softly spoken words a whisper echoes through the deep sunlight on dappled stone